

Nurseries for GIANTS

by Pepper Leeper

- 1 There are big turtles in Malaysia. They aren't the kind you keep as pets. They're giant sea turtles. They're so big that boys and girls can ride them!
- 2 Every summer, mother turtles come to the beaches to lay their eggs. They crawl up the beaches to dry land. Each mother turtle digs a hole. She lays many eggs in it. She covers them with sand. Then she goes back to the sea. The hot sun keeps the eggs warm until they hatch. The mother turtle never sees her babies.
- 3 But if boys and girls see the mother turtle on the beach, they take a ride on her back! That's how big these turtles are.
- 4 Malaysian people like to eat turtle eggs. Some of the people go to the beach after the mother turtle leaves. They dig up her eggs. They take them to town. They sell them in the market.
- 5 This worried some people. What if all the eggs were taken? None would hatch. No baby turtles would be born. Soon there would be no turtles.
- 6 So the Malaysian government started special turtle nurseries. These are beaches that have high fences around them. People who are hunting eggs can't get in. The eggs are safe.
- 7 The baby turtles hatch. For a while they stay in a pen. That keeps big fish from eating them. When they're big enough to take care of themselves, they swim out to sea.
- 8 No one can ride the turtles in the nurseries. But boys and girls should be glad. They know there will still be giant turtles for their children to see.
